LEAPED FROM EADS BRIDGE

Paul Tustin Dives 120 Feet Into the River.

TURNED A SOMERSAULT

Then Dropped Clearly Feet Foremost in the Water Without the Slightest Injury.

A tall athletic young man, smooth-faced ral get-up, walked nervously along the rail bridge at 9:50 o'clock Tuesday morning, and over upon the turbid, swirling water, 120 feet down. What he saw was a double ket and small leather satchel. The boatme with just enough steam to hold their own the current. This commonplace ned to reassure the athletic young man, and with one prolonged breath, as of relief and re-established confidence, he sat down on the nearest bench and gazed Another expression of relief came her he reached down and with a stealthy movement unlaced both shoes.

Even as he gazed, a high green-bodied express wagon, drawn by a powerful bay horse, and containing three men, approached along the south side of the bridge roadway. To the men Tustin nodded, and with expert haste, divested himself of coat and trousers and stood erect clad only in a bathing garment of black Jersey cloth, cut to a "U" shape over the breast, and embroidered in yellow. Scarcely had he disrobed when two of the men were on the footway beside him, with a long, heavy, weather-beaten plank. This they thrust through the railing near the bottom, but clear of the plank floor, and showed it forward until the outer end projected a few inches beyond the outermost telegraph wire on the stringers supporting the foot bridge.

As they pushed the plank into place, the tall young man in bathing dress clambered over the railing and stood upon a crosspiece just outside. His helpers, meanwhile, threw their combined weight upon the inner end of the plank.

"Have you got it?" This from the farther side of the high railing.

"All solid," came the confident rejoinder, and with the word Tustin threw his weight upon it. Out he walked, over the telegraph vires, steadily, without tremor or nervous waving of the sams, and tested it repeatedly by letting down his weight with bowing of the threes. The pair inside saw howelds.

the significance of this leave-taking, Tustin was gone.

The intrepid diver's flight was not taken recklessly, as one who sees no danger, but steadily, and with that masterful resolution that conquers physical fear. His bent-up arms gave a slight forward impetus to his slightly stooped body, and out he went in space, with heels drawn up, head forward and elbows close to sides. A narrow jump it was—not more than five feet, for Tustin was not giving a show of muscular power—and then he dropped straight down for fifteen feet.

and elbows close to sides. A narrow jump it was not giving a show of muscular power-and then he dropped straight down for fifteen feet.

Now the diver began turning, slowly, regularly, as circus acrobats, desiring to convey the strongest impression of deliberation. His body made a complete revolution. The turn consumed hardly two seconds, but to those who, anxious and perturbed, watched the descent, it seemed an age, and then the muscular form, feet downward, fell with frightful speed, the last forty feet into the water.

The full drop was 120 feet.

Tustin finished his perilous descent perfectly upright, with palms meeting above the head, and as the splash announcing the termination of the frightful journey was observed. Stewart shouted, "He's safe," dragged the plank back, and threw it, with the intrepid diver's street attire, into the high green wagon.

Tustin disappeared momentarily beneath the water and then shot upward, his body exposed to the waist, and arms extended has as he had gone down. Immediately he truck out for the boat with such splendid vigor that those who saw the feat breathed free, knowing him to be unharmed. In ten seconds more he had seized the waiting boat by the bow, and clambered in, disdaining the stern oar's assistance, and, seating himself nonchalantly in the bow seat, opened the satchel and fell to drying himself with vigorous motion. The boat pulled down stream, and the hero of an hour was exultantly received on shore by the supernumeraries of his brief adventure. From an unobscured position on the levee a few rods south of the bridge Prof. William Clark, the employer and patron of Tustin, and his chief aide, Walter Stewart, saw, exulting the happy termination of this deed of daring. "That was the cleanest leap ever made," Clark said. "Tustin wanted to turn a double somersault and to swim two miles down the river, but I said: 'No; the leap's enough,' and so it was. That was the pretitest jump I ever saw made. When Speedy made his jump his helpers got nervous, seeing the police com

LOST ON THE OCEAN No Tidings of the Norwegian Ship Fjeld or Her Crew.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., May 21.—The Norwe-gian ship Fjeld, laden from Grimsby for this port, now 218 days out, has been given up by shipping men of this port. The ship was last sighted Jan. 10 off Cape Horn, is company with the British ship Moresby They parted and March 20 a burning iron ship, apparently deserted, was sighted in latitude 10 south, longitude 113 west. As it is not known that any other vesse was due in the locality at that time, it is thought that this must have been the Field. If so it is quite probable that if the crew had recently abandoned the vessel they would recently abandoned the wessel they would steer for the Marquesas Islands in latitude 10 south, longitude 140 west. If the vessel had been drifting for several weeks the crew would then have made for Pitcairn Island in about latitude 22 south, longitude 130 west. In either event the nearest land would have been from 500 to 600 miles from the burning vessel.

The fact that since that time no vessel has sighted the Fjeld gives cause for apprehension that the vessel is lost. There can be but little doubt of this, for her cargo was a dangerous one, but the fate of her crew is uncertain, though a majority are of the opinion that they had ample time to abandon the ship and are now on the Marquesas Islands or at Pitcairn.

A large four-masted vessel just sighted outside the heads is thought to be the Dowan Mills, 138 days from Cardiff for this point. It is barely possible she may have some news of the missing Fjeld, but it is not probable.

QUEENSTOWN, May 21.—The German steamer Hispania, Capt. Kuhn, from Hamburg, with 200 passengers on board, has put into this port in distress after encountering very heavy weather. When about 250 miles west of Fastnet the steamer rolled so heavily that a portion of her cargo, consisting of iron rails, broke adrift and threatened to pound holes in her side. Consequently the Hispania was put about and headed for this port, where her cargo will have to be partly bestowed before she can proceed on her voyage.

But this will, leaving everything to Archbishop Kain is lost, or at least it cannot be found, else Saturday's suit would not have been brought. Mr. Garesche and a gentleman believed to be Maj, Lindsay were witnesses to this last will.

The law of the church requires a bishop to leave a copy of his will with a brother bishop to provide against loss. Hence it was that Archbishop Kenrick intrusted a copy of the Fr. Brady will to the Archbishop of Dubuque. But he did not have a copy made of the last will making Archbishop Kain his heir and executor, and the original is not in evidence.

The nearest heirs of Archbishop Kenrick are his first cousin, Miss Eustace and her nephew, Mr. Eustace. No one having any knowledge of Archbishop Kenrick believes that he has any near relatives in Ireland.

Estimates as to the value of the property held by Archbishop Kenrick in fee hover about three million dollars.

It was supposed that Archbishop Kenrick might give some intimation of his feelings to the Deputy Sheriff who served him with a copy of the plaintiff's bill. Deputy John Mead was given the document and he went to the archlephscopal residence, 3810 Lindell boulevard. A servant told him Archbishop Kenrick could not be seen and Deputy Mead made a "copy service" by leaving the petition.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., May 21.—When enator Dunn reported the bill of the configuration of the configuration of the configuration of the senate yesterday ference committee in the Senate yesterday he explained at length wherein it differed from the bills of the Safety Committee and the House. They are practically those outlined heretofore. The principal changes relate to the commission. The Bafety Committee bill provided for a Board of Election Commissioners composed of three members—one chief, to be appointed by the Governor, to serve all the time, and two associate commissioners to serve when necessary. One to be appointed by the Governor and one by the Mayor.

The House bill provided for a commission of three, the same as the Safety Committee bill, but all three of them were to be permanent and draw $3,000 per annum. One was to be appointed by the Governor, one by the Mayor and one to be elected by the people.

The commission provided for in the Con-people.

The commission provided for in the Conference Committee substitute is composed of three. Two principal commissioners, one to be appointed by the Governor and one by the Mayor; the third by the Governor to have a deciding vote in all cases except in the selection of judges and clerks and the selection of employee of the office, which is vested in the two principal commissioners, the amountments to be equally and the selection of employes of the office, which is vested in the two principal commissioners, the appointments to be equally divided between them. The third commissioner is to serve for a term of two years and receive a salary of $900 per annum. This salary was thought sufficient, inax much as he is only required to be present at stated meetings of the board and during resistants.

The substitute provides that the judges and clerks of election shall be confirmed by the Circuit Court and commissioners. The color line, which has been such a bone of contention, provided for in the Safety Committee bill, and objected to by the Republicans, has been incorporated in the substitute. It provides that when a colored person is registered the records shall so show. Both bills provided that in case one of the canvassers did not appear for duty the other one should proceed to make a canvass of the precinct. The substitute provides that any fallure to perform the duties shall be reported to the Board of Election Commissioners, and it shall proceed to fill such vacancy.

The two bills also provided that the ballots should be counted by a committee composed of three presiding Judges of the Circuit Court, the City Counselor and the three members of the commission. The substitute provided for the counting of the ballots by the commission without the assistance of any other persons. The substitute is considered by most of the members as the best possible compromise that could have been effected.

CROPS IMPROVED BY RECENT RAINS

FAIR PROSPECT FOR FRUIT.

Many Fields of Corn, Nipped by the Frost, Have Been Replanted.

Special to The Post-Dispatch."
COLUMBIA, Mo., May E.—The Weather-Crop Bulletin, issued by the Missouri Weather Service for the week ending May 18, an most sections of the State the weather during the past week has been very favorable to growing crops. The mean temperature was from 8 to 13 degrees below the normal, and frost was reported in some portions of the State on every day except the 15th, very heavy frosts occurring on the 12th and 14th. The greatest damage by frost occurred in the eastern portion of the State, from Knox and Lewis Counties southward to Stoddard and Mississippi, and on bottom lands in portions of Clinton, DeKalb, Gentry, Worth, Harrison, Grundy, Putnam and Nodaway Counties. Many fields of corn were cut to the ground; gardens and potatoes were ruined or seriously injured, and in some districts much damage was done to wheat. Fruit also suffered considerably in some counties, and much damage was done to melons. In other portions of the State the principal damage was to tender vegetation on bottom lands.

Good rains fell in most counties of the central and eastern section, improving the conditions of wheat, oats, grasses and gardens, but over most of the western counties the rainfall was less than 50 inch, and at the close of the week rain was badly needed.

Chinch bugs have continued to do great-damage to wheat in many counties, though in some localities their ravages have been checked by the cool weather and rain. In a number of the southern and eastern counties much wheat has been ruined by fly. In many of the western counties oats will fall considertably short of an average crop. Corn has made but little growth and looks yellow, as a result of the low temperature. Much replanting has been necessary on account of frost and the ravages of cut worms. No damage to cotton is reported.
In the eastern sections grasses have improved, but in most of the western counties meadows are short.

OUTLOOK IN ILLINOIS.

Wheat Damaged by Drouth, Chinch Bugs and Hessian Fly.

CHICAGO, May 21.-The continuation ool, cloudy weather, after the severe freeze of the first of last week, with sharp freeze of the first of last week, with sharp frosts on the 17th and 20th, has rather been an advantage to the corn and potatoes which were cut down by the frost, and gives them an opportunity to reappear, which high temperature would not do. The short summary on the frost damage appended to last week's crop bulletin was quite correct, as later reports show, and the damage, having been followed by a week of unfavorable growing weather, warmth and unshine are now needed to cause more vigorous growth and to germinate sown seed. The temperature average for the past week has been abnormally low, about 10 to 12 deg. below seasonable temperatures. The showers were largest in southern counties, where an average of over an inch fell on the 14th and 16th, effectually relieving the drouth condition in that section.

The outlook for a large fruit crop in most southern counties is still promising, but central and northern counties will scarcely recover from the freeze. Corn, potatoes and gardens, where permanently injured, can yet be replanted with sufficient time in the season still before the farmer to make a good crop, if no later disaster develops. The principal wheat growing counties (Southeast) report wheat badly damaged by drouth, chinch bugs and the Hessian fig. and many of the fields are being plowed for corn.

Northern section: To-day's reports of the frosts on the 17th and 20th, has rather been principal weest growing counties (coutine east) report wheat badly damaged by drouth, chinch bugs and the Hessian fly, and many of the fields are being plowed for corn.

Northern section: To-day's reports of the freeze of last week show that ice from a sixteenth to a quarter of an inch was common, and that the minimum temperature throughout the northern section was 4 to 6 deg. below the freezing point. Corn, potatoes and vegetables, grapes, cherries and strawberries were badly damaged, or cut off entirely, with little prospect for anything to recover, with the exception of corn and potatoes. Replanting of corn is being done by many, but others find the root to be alive and growing again. Wheat, oats and rye were not materially injured. Pastures and grass fields are doing well and are in splendid condition.

Central section: The frost damage throughout the central counties, while severe and extensive, was not so great as in northern counties. This is especially true of east and southeast counties, where many report but slight damage to fruit. Corn, potatoes and gardens were generally cut down, and fruits materially injured; grapes, cherries, plums, strawberries, blackberries and raspberries all suffered. Apples are dropping quite heavily. Corn is growing again, but some are replanting. Wheat, rrye and oats were not materially injured, but wheat is heading very short and uneven. The Hessian fiy along with the chinch bug is reported doing damage in southeast counties and a few central, and many fields are being plowed for corn.

Southern section: Except in the extreme southern counties considerable damage resulted from the frost. Corn, potatoes, sweet potatoes, meions, cucumbers, beans and other tender vegetables were nipped and fruit was touched along the northern line of the southern tier, grapes quite badly, and apples, cherries, peaches and plums suffacient to cause some dropping. A good general rain on the lith and lith effectually improved vegetation in general. Wheat is in poor condition.

The coming season will see the largest crop of fruit ever harvested in this section. The trees are not only heavily loaded, but there are many young apple and peach orchards just beginning to bear fruit. The berry crop will also be very large. Strawberries are now coming in and are of very fine quality. We have had no frosts here at all and corn, wheat and eats are doing fine. South Missouri is surely on top this season.

FORSYTH, Mo., May 21.—All vegetables have suffered by recent frosts here, beans having been damaged the worst, but nothing very seriously. Pears, apples, cherries and late peaches have suffered. WILL GET THEIR MONEY BACK. Payments of the Income Taxes Will Be Returned Without Delay.

Those fortunate enough to have an come of over $4,000 a year will be fortunate snough to get back the income tax they have paid with little trouble or expense ave paid with little trouble or expense. It was at first thought Congress would have to make an appropriation to repay the tax, but sec. $220, Revised Statutes, confers the necessary authority on the Internal Revenue Commissioner, as follows:

confers the necessary authority on the Internal Revenue Commissioner, as follows:

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue, subject to regulations prescribed by the Secretary of the Treasury, is authorized, on appeal to him made, to remit, refund and pay back ail taxes errodeously or illegally assessed or collected, all penalties collected without authority, and all taxes that appear to be unjustly assessed or excessive in amount, or in any manner wfongfully collected; also to repay to any collector or deputy collector the full amount of such sums of money as may be recovered sgainst him in any court, for any internal taxes collected by him, with the cost and expenses of suit; also all damages and costs recovered against any assessor, assistant assessor, collector deputy collector or inspector, in any suit brought against him by reason of anything done in the due performance of his official duty, etc.

Judge Speck, Collector for St. Louis, received the following telegram this morning from Commissioner Miller:

"Income tax law declared unconstitutional by Supreme Court. Stop all work in connection therewith and send to this office at once, under seal, all books, assessment lists, returns and records in your office, or hands of deputies, relating to income tax."

Judge Speck said he had as yet received no instructions as to the manner in which repayment would be made. The usual way was for claimants to fill out claim blanks, where taxes had been paid on erroneous assessments or where an excess had been paid. These blanks were forwarded to Washington and a check was sent direct to the claimant. It was possible, he said, in this case that he would be called on for a list of payments made and a check be sent to him for the whole amount, with instructions to settle with each claimant entitled to the relief. The total amount paid structions to settle with each claimant entitled to the relief. The total amount paid in at St. Louis was only $3,868.61.

Judge Speck said he had intended to start this week on the work of assessing with penalty those who had failed to make their returns, and the decision relieved him of this week on the work of assessing with penalty those who had falled to make their returns, and the decision relieved him of the only unpleasant part of. his duties. Judge Speck said that his experience with those who had made returns had been that they thought the tax a just one and were perfectly willing to pay it.

Among the cierks the decision of the Supreme Court is not popular. It knocks eleven men out of good positions. The clerks had stopped all the work they have been engaged on and were busy collecting all papers relating to the income tax, preparatory to returning them to the Internal Revenue Bureau at Washington. As soon as this is accomplished, which will be in a few days, the entire force will be dismissed. A grave question has arisen as to the effect of the decision on the income tax law of 1864. It was declared constitutional by the Supreme Court of the United States in 1865 when the learned Justice Chase was on the bench, but it is an open question whether this decision does not open the door to claims on the ground that the income tax, levied as a war measure, was not unconstitutional also under this latest decision. If so, other questions will arise as to whether the statute of limitations will apply in cases where the tax was paid without protest. Many other legal points will be involved if such claims are made.

The movement is represented to take in the Black Diamond Steelworks, Howe, Brown & Co., La Belle Steelworks, Aderson, Dupuy & Co. and the Crescent Steelworks. Altogether they employ about 15,000 men. All these works are now running on a non-union basis and are said to be paying less than the Amalgamated scale. The new organization, so far as can be learned, will have no connected with the Amalgamated Association, and has been named the Damascus Association of America. The membership is composed of steel melters, rollers, hammermen, etc., of the various works, numbering about 1,000. It is claimed that the onlystep yet to be taken to put the organization on a working basis is the election of officers, which will be held on Thursday night.

All bore blue pencil dates. Several of the clippings were ac-counts of the developments in the famous Ging murder case at Minneapolis. Another was an account of the escapades of one "Effic" Young, a female impersonator in New York City. Several "personals" from a newspaper were found, one of which read: "Queen—Will leave Wednesday. King." The connection between the signature of the letter to "Effic" Smith, "your little queen," and the address of the personal is evident.

One of the letters found was from E. C. Ray, D. D., Secretary of the Presbyterian Board of Aid in Chicago, who was evidently much decelved as to Dacons' real character, as he commended him for his real in prayer, saying that Dacons' aim to do good was high and noble.

"I know nothing about Dacons," she began. "I met him about eighteen months ago. He always treated me with the greatest politeness and I regarded him as a gentieman. "I hope now he has burned up all my letters. How I wish I could get that last letter back. If he has been missing for several days it must be at his office."

Miss Ruebel said she knew nothing of Dacons' family. She persisted that she had not seen him for two months.

Twenty Lots Well Under Cultivation This Week.

Spiritual Director—Rev. S. P. Huber, C. M.
Honorary Presidents—Messrs Charles Green, T. W. Murphy and John Moloney.
Concerning the beginning of this work, Fr. Huber said:
"When first I began to talk with these railroad employes about attending to their Christian duties they told me that they could not find time to go to church unless they lost two days. I went to the managers of the roads and expostulated with them, telling them that the men would soon lose all interest in religion and after several conversations they made an order that all men in their employ would be permitted to attend church on providing substitutes; and to facilitate acceptance of this opportunity all the extra men were required to report for duty on Sunday morning. The very first man to take advantage of this permission was a Mr. Cook, an Episcopalian, and he has been showering benedictions on my head ever since."
"Did you ask permission of the managers of the street railroads to engage in this work?"
"Never. Why should I ask their permission? I never rode free on their lines, and n St. Louis soil. Every day shows an increased interest in the plan, and brings new applicants and new friends. The Exoffice, 503 Fagin Building, Monday, and the

The Secretary has forty-two applications, accepted and ready for lots, out of about 100 applicants. New applications are received daily. They are accepted, and the committee would like to give every one a lot before it is too-late for planting. In the opinion of the committee the planting may continue safely till June 10. No allotments will be made after this week. The committee did not expect to accommodate more than twenty or thirty families this season, and yet they could have put several hundred at work if they had been supported in their efforts with sufficient money. The demonstration of the practical operation of the plan in St. Louis has been the chief aim of the committee, since they under took the work so late in the season. If next Saturday twenty lots will be thoroughly planted; and on some of them the sprotting vegetables will attest the real life suc Louis.

The committee has furnished seed and implements to loso far, but they cannot continue this, unless are the more money immediately. Those whould not let a few man bear the whole burdon. Cash contributions in any sun from $1 to $100 will be received at the office of the committee, or at the Post-Dispatch office, or by the Tressurer, Judge J. H. Terry, 621 Chestnut street. Members of the committee will visit the Merchants' Exchange Thursday to selicit subscriptions from the business men.

Messrs. Addington and Forshaw of the Executive Committee made a tour among the implement and produce houses, and were well rewarded. They report contributions as follows:

Mueller-Block Produce Co., 818 North Third street, three bushels potatoes; L. Garvey & Co., Third and Lucas, three bushels of potatoes, one dozen rakes, one dozen needs.

MISSIONARY. First Official Examination Under the New City Ordinance. Fr. Huber Seeks Souls Aboard the

A test of car fenders was made at the car sheds of the Compton Heights division of the Lindell Railway, Vandeventer and Park, Monday afternoon, in the presence of President McMath of the Board of Public Improvements, Street Commissioner Milner, Harbor Commissioner Stone, Water Commissioner Holman, Superintendent Baumhoff of the Lindell Railway, C. S. Yost and J. D. Hodges, inventors of rival HIS WORK NON-SECTARIAN. Denies He Is Making Converts to Yost and J. D. Hodges, inventors of rival fenders, and others. It was the Yost fender which the Lindell company had decided on, and which the Street and Railroad Committee of the Hoard of Public Improvements had been invited to inspect. Others were exhibited, but the Yost fender was the only one which satisfactorily stood the test.

The Yost fender is a very simple affair, made of heavy wire netting, with the outer edge covered with a rubber band, reducing to a minimum the force of the blow struck by it. Under two pounds of weight it swings forward and downward with a scooping motion. When the car is in motion the fender hangs about five inches from the street level. It is under the control of the motorman, who, by means of a brake rod, can lower it to the ground in an instant, thus preventing a small body, such as a prostrate child, from being dragged or rolled by becoming fastened under the fender.

No fender can be made to be carried closer to the ground than five inches because of the oscillation or pitch of the car, and because of stones or other obstructions on the street.

It was demonstrated that when within Yost and J. D. Hodges, inventors of riva Thus graciously did the Rev. Huber re-ceive a Post-Dispatch representative who found him after much industrious seeking The reverend father was indignant that a statement from any of the discharged employes of the Union Depot line should have been printed without consultation with him. He denounced as absolutely and entirely false the charge that he had tried to force them to become Catholics.
"What I did do," he said, "was to try to get them' to attend to their Christian duties according to the forms they had beer according to the forms they had been taught. The idea of my wishing to make the men Catholics is absolutely false. My work among the men is purely moral—to uplift them from their careless life and make them upright, honorable men and to extend to them the benefits of our Christian civilization, which they heretofore have not had." "Some of the men who were dismissed say you had a list of their names with notes opposite each, relative to their religious standing."

"That is absurd on the face of it."
"Do you mean to say that you had no such lists." cause or stones or other obstructions on the street.

It was demonstrated that when within two feet of a person, by merely kicking the ratchet stop on the brake beam, the fender was instantly lowered to the ground by its was instantly lowered to the ground by its own weight.

A dummy man, stuffed with sawdust, was placed on the track, in default of a human volunteer. The figure was placed in a sitting position and the fender picked it up safely. With the figure lying across the track it was rolled gently into the fender. In tests made with a 200 pound sack of salt lying crossways, and standing on end, the sack was picked up without injury. The only tests which failed were attempts to pick up the sack or the dummy lying lengthwise of the track. In each case, while the fender did not permit the object to go under the car, it pushed them along until the car was stopped. A person under such circumstances would be badly bruised by contact with the payement, but would not be so with the payement, but would not be so

"Do you mean to say that you had no such lists?"
"Oh, well, of course I had the men's names—I would naturally make a memorandum of the names of those I spoke to. I have been in this work two or three years."
"Do you know any other roads in St. Louis where this constant solicitation of the employes is permitted?"
"Oh, yes; I go or all the roads—the Olive, Bellefontaine, People's and Union Depot. I have nine roads."
Fr. Huber brought out three circulars which he said were distributed to the employes of the roads upon which he labored. Two of them were issued in the name of St. Paul's Railroad Sodality, and on one of these was a list of the roads included, two systems being represented, the Union Depot and People's. The lines mentioned are the California avenue, Cherokee street, Grand avenue, Tower Grove, Mound City and Bellefontaine, of the Union Depot railroad system, and the People's or Fourth street cable, Fr. Huber insisted that his work was entirely non-sectarian, and submitted the circulars in proof of his claim. Two of them stoped. A person under such creates stances would be badly bruised by contact with the pavement, but would not be so likely to be killed. It was generally conceded that no fender could be invented which would pick up a person lying in such a position. In nearly all street car accidents the person is either in a standing position, running to escape the danger, or lying crosswise of the track, having stumbled while attempting to cross. The danger of being struck by the bumper or drawhead of the car is obviated by its being covered with a cushion, easily detachable.

The Hodges fender was next tested. It has an automatic front piece so arranged that when struck by an obstruction the fender falls to the street level without action on the part of the motorman. The objection to it noted was that it had too much gearing, etc., taking no end of trouble to keen it oiled and cleaned so as to be that when struck by an obstruction the fender falls to the street jevel without action on the part of the motorman. The objection to it noted was that it had too much gearing, etc., taking no end of trouble to keep it oiled and cleaned so as to be always reliable.

The tests were wholly unsatisfactory. The sawdust man was pushed and dragged along and finally went under the fender, losing a large amount of stuffing. Whether sitting or lying the same result was attained. The test with the sack of salt ended the same way. At the first dash the covering was ripped off. A second sack was no more fortunate, and, to crown the inventor's chagrin, it got under the fender, bent one of the rods and got the machinery out of gear. In no instance did the fender pick up the object.

Mr. Hodges said that at a former trial his fender picked up boxes and everything placed in its way. He said the fender was only a roughly made sample and was not strong enough. The fender sloped downward too much, defects which he promises to remedy.

There were two other fenders exhibited, but no tests were made with them.

Mr. Yost was warmly complimented on the successful test his fender sustained. Mr. Yost is a well-known newspaper man, and his attention was drawn to the subject a long time ago, before the question had been agitated locally, by preparing a special article on the subject.

His fender has been affixed to a car on the Park avenue division in daily use for six months, and, after testing several others, the Lindell company decided on his as the best offered so far. If approved by the Board of Public Improvements it will be adopted by the Lindell company on all its divisions.

"Did Mr. Scullin ever object to your boarding the cars to talk to the men?"

"Well, not exactly in that way. What he did say was, that he did not want the attention of the men taken from their work by anyone. He wanted them to give all their attention to their duties. As a matter of fact, I always pay my fare on the carsnot by paying my nickel, for many of the conductors will not take it from me. But I will show you a document."

Fr. Huber left the room, and returned presently with a note typewritten on the official paper of the Union Depot Railway Co., addressed to Fr. Huber, and acknowledging the receipt of $5 car fare for 1895. This acknowledgment was given, Fr. Huber stated, so that the conductors with whom he rode would not feel obliged, on account of their friendship for him, to carry him free, and pay his fare out of their own pockets.

Fr. Huber repeatedly disclaimed any attempt or intent to coerce the railroad employes with whom he conversed into becoming Catholics, his object being, he said, only to iduce them to put into practice whatever religious precepts they had been taught. He referred to several conversations he had had with Conductor Groff on religious subjects, and affirmed and reaffirmed that all he had asked of Groff was that he should take time to acknowledge his obligation to God, and his responsibility for the welfare of his own soul. He also referred with manifest satisfaction to the statement of Motorman Coddington that the conductors had been discharged for cause.

THE ROYAL ARCANUM Fair Italy seems to be doing more than its share for her adopted country, for a goodly number of the sets of twins are goodly number of the sets of twins are children of Italian parents. The proudest among these are Mr. and Mrs. Migeletta, who were holding a baby each in their laps. Carlo and Nicola slept nearly all the time, oblivious of the admiration which their red, blue and white bows on caps and dresses elicited from every visitor. The happiest judge of this part of the show is Mr. Stephen Delacella. He constantly hovered around the bow-knot bables, John and Joe Slene, and the Ortalle twins, although he states that he will by no means be partial in his decisions.

Visitors, mostly of the fair sex, thronged the aisles and piled the mothers with questions. How old is it? What's its name? Is it a boy or a girl? Does it look like its father? Did you really raise it on the bottle? were questions heard on every side, and answered again and again by the fond mothers, who felt more than compensated by the interest cisplayed in their prospective prize winners. children of Italian parents. During the afternoon Georgine and Emily Lucas entertained the visitors with charming little songs, to which Emily, a little 5-year-old tot, played the accompaniment.
The dancing of little Clarence Crosby, Miss Kohn and the Fox children, on the stage platform set all the other children wild. They climbed on the stage, and their gyrations in imitation of the little dancers furnished great amusement for the spectators.
As the time for the award of prizes draws near the mothers are growing anxious and discuss among themselves the probability of carrying off the honors for their darlings.

tee on Statistics. A number of minor constitutional changes were suggested by the committees and acted upon. The election of officers was set for Tuesday, but will probably not be reached until Wednesday, owing to the press of other business. It is generally conceded that the present officers, with very few exceptions, will succeed themselves.

In consequence of the report of the joint Committee on Medical Examination and Good of the Order, it is probable that a committee will be sent to Arkansas to look into the advisability of permitting lodges to be formed and members secured in that State, climatic conditions having hitherto acted as a bar.

Zachritz' Action n the Patent Medicine Man's Case Surprising.

HOW THE DOCTOR ESCAPED.

Record of This Astonishing Case From the Wounding of McBain Down to the Present Time.

Circuit Attorney Zachritz was scored ight and left at the Four Courts when vord came from Hillsboro, Mo., that he had entered a nolle prosequi in the case of as sault to kill against Dr. C. F. Simmons, the patent medicine man. Court officials and police officers, who are familiar with the facts, say it is nothing less than a rich man purchasing his escape from the peni-tentiary by running important witnesses out of the way. Zachritz is blamed for per mitting the witnesses to get beyond the jurisdiction of the courts. Here is the rec

During the earlier part of 1894 John Mc-Bain, a man with a large family and de-pendent on the salary he drew every month for its support, was employed as a book-keeper in the office of Dr. Simmons. Mc-Bain is a slight, delicate man, about 48 keeper in the office of Dr. Simmons. Ac-Bain is a slight, delicate man, about 48 years old. Simmons is large and powerful. On the evening of June 21, 1894, Dr. Sim-mons entered his office and began arguing, with McBain about some work which he had not finished. The bookkeeper replied by saying he was overworked. At the time of the argument it was late in the after-noon, and all of the employes had left, with the exception of Dr. Simmons' stenographer and two traveling salesmen.

of the argument it was late in the afternoon, and all of the employes had left, with the exception of Dr. Simmons stenographer and two traveling salesmen.

Dr. Simmons was nettled at McBain's replies. The bookkeeper was working at his desk, and Dr. Simmons was standing near by with, a penknife in his hand. Matters came to a climax, and the result was that McBain was stabbed in the left side. McBain claims that Simmons rushed at him and stabbed him. Simmons alleges that his bookkeeper attempted to assault him; that he held his hand up for protection, and McBain ran against the penknife. Be that as it may, McBain was dangerously wounded, and was confined to his bed for weeks, his family meantime subsisting as best it could.
Then McBain swore out a warrant against Simmons, charging him with assault to kill.
The case came up in the Court of Criminal Correction, and Judge Claiborne discharged Simmons, making the 'surprising statement that it was a case for the Civil and not the Criminal courts.

The next grand jury indicted Simmons.
Last fall the case came up in the Criminal Court before a carefully, selected jury. The defense made a failure of its effort to prove that McBain had run into Simmons' knife.
The jury found Simmons guilty of felonious wounding, and sentenced him to three years in the penitentiary. This benefited McBain not only in that it showed Simmons to be in the wrong, but because the wounded bookkeeper had filed suit in the Circuit Court against Simmons for $10,000 damages, which the fact that Simmons was oriminally guilty would help.

The defense filed a motion for a new trial
after the verdict had been announced.
With it was submitted an affidavit made by one C. W. Whitney, alleging that Jules Bertero, one of the jurors who had convicted Simmons, was prejudiced. Whitney claimed to have heard Bertero remark in a saloon before the trial, that he, would convicted Simmons, was prejudiced toward Simmons, and that Whitney's allegations were false. Boles also made the same statement

THE INCOME TAX DECISION.

The Republic of the United States has now been in existence a little more than 100 years. During the first century of its existence it will be admitted that the Bench of the Federal Supreme Court was occupied by some of the ablest and most honored interpreters of the law that the world has known. During that cen tury the Supreme Court thus constituted decided five times in as many separate decisions that the Income Tax is a constitutional tax. Yesterday, by a decision which sharply accentuates the decadence of the Supreme Court, those five decisions were overruled and annulled, and a law designed to remedy in small part the oppressive inequalities of our present system of taxation was declared to be un constitutional and void.

In characterizing this decision, no critic could find words more severely condemnatory than those used by four of the Justices in their dissenting opin-

Justice Harlan said: The practical, if not the direct effect, of the decision to-day is to give to certain kinds of property a position of favoritism and advantage that is inconsistent with the fundamental principles of our social orgaization, and to invest them with power and influence that is perilous to that portion of ple upon whom rests the larger part of the burdens of the Government, and who ought not to be subjected to the domination of aggregated wealth any more than the property of the country should be at the mercy of the lawless.

Justice Brown said: The decision involves nothing less than the surrender of the taxing power to the moneyed class. While I have no doubt that Congress will find some means of surmounting the present crisis, my fear is that some moment of national peril this de cision will rise up to frustrate it's will and paralyze its arm. I hope it may not prove the first step towards the submergence of the liberties of the people in a sordid des

Justice White said: The injustice of the conclusion points to the error of adopting it. It takes invested wealth and reads it into the Constitution as a favored and protected class of prop erty, whilst it leaves the occupation of the minister, the doctor, the professor, the lawyer, the inventor, the author, the mer chant, and all the various forms of human activity upon which the prosperity of a people must depend, subject to taxation

Justice Jackson, who by his vote and words rebuked the suspicion with which he was regarded by the friends of the people, said:

The decision practically destroys the wer of the Government to reach incomes. It takes from Congress its rightful power to fix the rate of taxation, and substitutes therefor a rule incapable of application without imposing the most monstrous in equality on the citizens of a common country. The decision reverses the common rule of taxation by exempting those who are best able to pay and rorcing the burden upon the shoulders of those least able to pay. The decision is the most disastrous low ever struck at the constitutional lower of Congress. It strikes down an ortant, vital and essential power of the Government. It leaves the Government, in case of necessity, without power to reach by taxation in any form the vast es derived from the real and permal property of the country.

What is the remedy for this infamous betrayal of the people's rights? There

One is to wait patiently until "in the great crucible of Time" the Suprem Court can be purged of its present membership and their places taken by me whose sympathies will be with the toiling masses and not with accumulated ege-enjoying wealth. The difficulty with this remedy is that the places of the present memors will in all probability be filled by appointees of the same kind. In our day there is nothing which the Pluteerats and great corporations watch with such vigilance as appointments to the Federal Bench and to our higher State Courts. The people, alas! are not half so vigilant, and hence their influ-ence is as a rule impotent. The second remedy is suggested by Justice Harlan when he says: "If this new theory of the constitution, as I believe it to be, if this new departure from the way marked out by the fathers. from the way marked out by the fathers is justified by the fundamental law, th American people cannot too soon amend their Constitution." This is the effective their Constitution." This is the effective and practical remedy. Henceforth one of the most earnest, persistent and determined efforts of all true Democrats, and of all who desire peace and the perpetuity of the Government, should be to amend that srticle of the Constitution which, as now interpreted, confers special privileges and exemptions upon in vested and accumulated wealth.

ESPECIALLY HONORED.

The Post-Dispatch has been peculiarly honored during the extra session of the Missouri Legislature. At an early stage of the proceedings a resolution calling i to account was adopted by the House of Representatives. The fact that this res elution was based upon a misconception did not lessen the honor which it conferred, because the honor lay in having deservedly or undeservedly, won the disapproval of such a body.

The Senate, more dilatory than the House, did not act until yesterday, when it adopted a resolution excluding the ondents of the Post-Dispatch from

Of course this is but impotent and childish spite. It will not deter the Post Dispatch or its correspondents from de ing their duty to the people as cour-ageously as heretofore. The Post-Dis-Sunday, is the largest of patch will continue to print such of the any St. Louis newspaper, Senate's proceedings as are likely to interest the people of Missouri, and no and its CITY CIRCULATION is closed door will prevent it from turning the light upon the doings of the Lobby

In the meanwhile, the people of the State are asked to note the fact that while an attempt is made to exclude the correspondents of the Post-Dispatch from the floor of the Senate, the lobbyist have free access at any and all times and when they do not feel like going to the Senate, summon their Senatorial lack-eys to meet them elsewhere—a summons which is always obeyed with alacrity.

The condemnation of a newspaper that has the courage to do its duty, by such a body, is a peculiar and appreciated

BLIND FINANCIAL LEADERSHIP.

The Post-Dispatch has no desire to treat Secretary Carlisle with anything but justice, and it is solely as a matter of justice that it feels impelled to hold up his attempt to tell the people what their financial policy should be as striking example of blind leadership.

All the greatness attributed to Mr. Car lisle was achieved by him as an expounder of political principles. When he was called from the floor of Congress to Mr. Cleveland's Cabinet as the executive head of the Treasury Department the Post-Dispatch expressed grave doubt of the wisdom of the step. The result has

It must be admitted that as a minister of finance Mr. Carlisle has been the most onspicuous failure in the history of this country. The President has treated his counsel with ill-concealed contempt and on several occasions has repudiated his utterances and reversed his policy. All of his financial proposals were rejected by the Finance Committees of Congress. They have not been in accord with the views of any considerable proportion of the people or their representatives. It is a practical maxim of business that advice should be sought from men of proved capacity and success. As a man who should be put forward to tell the people what they must do to be saved in financial matters. As an adviser of successful business men he is a spectac ular absurdity.

SHIRAS. -

The decision of the Supreme Court on the Income Tax law is regrettable. The course of Justice Shiras is a humiliation

Seven weeks ago Justice Shiras, after full hearing and exhaustive argument upon the question, voted to sustain the constitutionality of the law. Since then Justice Jackson has found himself able to attend the sittings of the Court, and on a rehearing it was found that his vote yould establish the constitutionality of the law and fix it in the statute books. Justice Shiras then changed his vote to the other side, making the Court stand, by a majority of one, against the constiutionality of the law.

These facts are shameful enough without emphasizing them by comment. is not necessary to recall the fact that at the time of Shiras' appointment it was criticised as due to the influence of the Pennsylvania Railroad and allied corporations. It is unnecessary to credit the rumors now current in Washington that his change of vote was brought about by the influence of the Pennsylvania Railroad. The simple facts as chroncled above speak for themselves.

STREET CAR FEWDER TESTS.

The trial of fenders preliminary to ompliance with the fender ordinance by the local street car companies imposes task of great importance upon the Board of Public Improvements.

The importance of the task may be judged by the fact that the latest fatal trolley accident in Brooklyn was caused by a cheap and inefficient fender. The fender was of the drop kind and the motorman was unable to get it into position in time. The fender, instead of catching the victim-a little boy-dropper on him and held him until his life was crushed out. The value of the fender law of this city in the protection of life and limb will depend wholly upon the Board, whose written approval of the fenders ad s essential to compliance with the law Ignorance or carelessness on the part of the Board could easily render the fenders adopted under the law an additional men ace to life instead of a means of prote tion. The exhaustive and admirable report of the Baltimore Fender Commission and the experiments in other cities give a eople expect a wise conclusion on the ubject which will bring them a max mum of good from the fender law.

It is said that C. H. Jones of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch has determined to be a delegate-at-large to the next Democratic National Convention.—St. Joseph Herald.

The Post-Dispatch is able to announce authoritatively that C. H. Jones has not determined to be a delegate-at-large to the next Democratic National Conven-tion, but on the contrary is resolutely determined not to be a candidate for that or any other office, whether elective or appointive, State or national. is no office of any kind that he would accept if it were tendered.

The showing made by the Post-Dispatch for the third week in May cannot escape the attention of advertisers. The large and constant increase in its circulation is a matter of great importance to them. It gives them a constituency to which they may appeal with profit The big daily average of 82,059, however, is not a standstill exhibit. Still larger figures must necessarily follow as the superiority and cheapness of the Post-Dispatch become fully realized by readers who have been putting up with inferior journals.

"The Democratic party stands con demned by the highest judicial tribunal of the country," says the local organ of the tax dodgers. As four members of this tribunal do not approve its decision, and the tax dodgers have only one majority in the court, there is very little in "condemnation." The truth is that the court itself stands condemned, and the people have no confidence in it.

How is it that Col. John T. Crisp of Independence is in Washington and Philadelphia at a time when he ought to be in Jefferson City getting his record straight by voting against the Lobby and in favor of Fellow-servant legisla-tion? Col. Crisp is voluble in talking for the people, but when it comes to voting he is apt to be on the wrong side or dodging.

The two Republicans on the Supreme bench who stood by the income tax law were not only faithful to the Constitution but true to the people. If there were more such men in the Republican party, it might some day be really grand Chairman Maffitt's hearing is not remarkably defective. If he does not know whether to call a convention or not it isn't because he is unaware of the innumerable voices that are demanding immediate action.

It is singular how the judicial mind, even in the highest courts, may lean to the protection of the wealthy and the ssion of the poor. Perhaps the judicial temperament is, after all, a myth. The artist who is painting ex-President

Harrison's picture complains that the ex-President's hair is plastered too close to the ex-President's head. What would he say if he had to paint hair for T. B. Reed? The proposed "McKinley and Reed" ticket would please McKinley more than it would delight Reed. In truth, Thomas B. would as lief mount the ice wagon as to play second fiddle to McKinley.

A PEACH BEYOND PROSTING

DISSENTING OPINIONS.

Justices White, Jackson, Harlan and Brown Favor the Income Tax.

The opinions of Justice White, Harlan ackson and Brown dissenting from the scision of the majority of the Supreme Court on the income tax cases were de livered too late for publication in the regu lar edition of the Post-Dispatch yesterday They are given below:

Justice White said: "The opinion of the majority was but a series of contradictory propositions, one eating up and destroying the others. In stating the grounds upon which he dissented from the majority, Justice White laid great stress on the Hylton case and re-enunciated the legal points he had made in his first dissenting opinion.

In conclusion Justice White's opinion said:

In conclusion Justice White's opinion said:

The injustice of the conclusion points to the error of adopting it. It takes the invested wealth and reads it into the Constitution as a favored and protected class of property, whilst it leaves the occupation of the minister, the doctor, the professor, the lawyer, the inventor, the author, the merchant, and all the various forms of human activity upon which the prosperity of a people must depend subject to taxation without apportionment.

"The absolute inequality and injustice of taxing by reference to population and without regard to the amount of the wealth taxed are so manifest that to admit the power to tax and limit it to this mode substantially denies the power itself, since it imposes a restriction which renders its exercise practically impossible."

A few extemporaneous remarks were made by Justice White after the reading of his written opinion. He spoke of the decision as a blow struck at the American people and said that the power of levying an income tax now left could only be exercised with such injustice that no legislative body would dare attempt to exercise it, for such an attempt would bring forward a bloody revolution.

Justice Harlan said:

for such an attempt would bring forward a bloody revolution.

Justice Harlan said:

"In my judgment this decision strikes at the very foundations of national authority, in that it denies to the General Government a power which is, or may be at some time imperatively needed, in a great emergency, say in case of war. It tends to re-establish that condition of helplessness in which Congress found itself during the period of articles of federation, when it was without powers by laws operating directly upon individuals to lay and collect, through its own agents, taxes sufficient to pay the debts and defray the expenses of government, and was dependent in all such matters upon the good will of the States and prompthess in meeting the requisitions made upon them by Congress.

"In its practical operation this decision withdraws from national taxation not only all incomes derived from real estate, but the personal property of the whole country—'invest' personal property, bonds, stocks, investments of all kinds and the income that may be derived from such property. This results from the fact that under the decision of the court such incomes cannot be taxed otherwise than by APPORTIONMENT omong the States on THE BASIS simply of POPULATION. No such apportionment can possibly be made without doing monstrous, wicked injustice to many for the benefit of the favored few in particular States. "The practical, if not the direct effect of the decision to-day is to give to certain kinds of property a position of favoritism and advantage that is inconsistent with the fundamental principles of our social organization, and to invest them with power and influence that is perious to that portion of the people upon which rests the larger part of the burdens of the Government, and who ought not to be subjected to the domination of aggregated wealth any more than the property of the country should be at the mercy of the lawless."

Justice Jackson said that he regretted that his strength would not permit him to century. Only recently he occupied a pulpit in a Scotch village church on a salary of doubt. He objected to this decision of the court because he thought the court had adopted a wrong method in arriving at its conclusions as to what a direct tax was. The founders of the Constitution held basis of taxation in view when the rule of apportionment for direct taxes was laid down and they certainly did not have in view things which did not have a general distribution. A direct tax on cotton, rice or tobacco, for instance, laid by the rule of apportionment, would have been absurd. The framers of the Constitution evidently had land in view. There was a certain relation between population and personalty and the income therefrom, or rents and bonds and their incomes. A tax that could not be equitably apportioned by the rule or numbers could not be a direct tax within the meaning of the framers of the Constitution. This was the best and most practicable test of direct tax.

The decision in his onlying practically.

the best and most practicable test of direct tax.

The decision in his opinion practically destroyed the power of the Government to reach incomes. It takes from Congress its rightful power to fix the rate of taxation, and substitutes therefor a rule incapable of application without imposing the most monstrous inequality on the citizens of a common country. The decision reversed the common rule of taxation by exempting those who were best able to pay and forcing the burden upon the shoulders of those who were least able to pay. In concluding Justice Jackson said, in his opinion, the decision was the most disastrous blow ever struck at the constitutional power of Congress. It struck down an important, vital and essential power of the Government. It left the Government, in case of necessity, without power to reach by taxation in any form the vast incomes derived from the real and personal property of the country. orm the vast incomes derived from teal and personal property of the country.

Justice Brown said: "The decision in volves nothing less than the surrender or the taxing power to the moneyed class While I have no doubt that Congress wil while I have no doubt that Congress was a find some means of surmounting the prent crisis, my fear is that in some moment of national peril this decision will rise up frustrate its will and paralyze its arm, hope it may not prove the first step towas submergence of the liberties of the people a sordid despotism of wealth."

Merely Dodging.

From the St. Francois Herald It seems that the St. Louis Republic de lights to print anything that is an indorse ment of Clevelandism. Its columns are daily filled with letters, speeches and inter-views of cuckoos in defense of the goldbus policy of the administration. For over a year the Republic has been trying to fool its readers by telling them that the coinage its readers by telling them the ratio of 18 to 1 is dangerous and ruinous to the "business interests" of the country. It should explain to its readers why it opposes the 16 to 1 ratio and what ratio it t should be adopted. The whole truth of the matter, however, is that the Republic don't want free silver at any ratio, and merely talks about this as a dodge.

Justice Jackson said that he regretted that his strength would not permit him to prepare a full opinion. He concurred fully in the opinion expressed by Justice White at the former hearing of the case, and would content himself with adding briefly a few points to that opinion. He said that he could not understand what difference there was between that diass of incomes decided by the court to be within the rule of apportionment and not within the rule of apportionment and not within the rule of informality. Nor could be understand how the valid portions could be invalidated because of the unconstitutionality of the other portions. If the principle upon which this decision was made was sound it could be extended so as to render the entire act of 1894 invalid. The two portions of the income tax were wholly separable, and to hold that an invalid portion broke down the valid portion was, he thought, without authority and without law.

No rule or canon, he proceeded, was better settled than that the court should not declare undenstitutional an enactment from the legislative branch of the Government unless its repugnance to the Constitution was clear beyond a reasonable doubt. He objected to this decision of the court because he thought the court had adopted a wrong method in arriving at its conclusions as it what a direct its was a dopted a wrong method in arriving at its conclusions of the gourt because he thought the court bad adopted a wrong method in arriving at its conclusions as it what a direct its was We find ninety-nine out of every hundred bankers are in favor of the gold standard, also most of the millionaires. To the Editor of The Post-Dispatch.

It is my opinion that if we wait for the city to do what is necessary to cleanse the Des Peres River and keep it clean, we shall wait until it has become such a nuisance that it will be necessary to abolish it by diverting it into the nearest sewer. It would be quite a loss to Forest Park if it had no running stream. Why not start a subscription to rescue this river from correption? Part of the money should be used to prosecute those who are befouling the water by letting their sewage into it, part in diverting any foul streams that now flow into it, and the rest in clearing the stream of obstructions in its course through the park and keeping it in good order. Many good objects have been attained through popular subscriptions, and I don't think we could have a better one than the rehabilitation of this once beautiful little river.

The body of the scarf is decorated with a scattered flower design embroidered in pale, blue wash silk. The mats are similarly ornamented, but require no lining. Please allow me to correct an error in Please allow me to correct an error in Virginia family history originating in your paper. In the Richmond Times of the 13th inst. appears a passage copied from your columns under the caption "Jefferson's Sweetheart," in which it is stated that Rebecca Burwell, the said "sweetheart," married Gov. Page. Gov. Page and Mr. Jefferson were cotlege maies, intimate friends and confidants, and probably about the same age. They were unmarried and both had "sweethearts" contemporaneously. How so absurd an idea as that Rebecca Burwell married the son of Gov. Page, who couldn't have been more than 20 years her junior, got into, or, at least, stuck in the imagination of anybody who had read this portion of Mr. Jefferson's early blography, is inconceivable.

But aside from all this, the "truth of history" is that Rebecca Burwell, in a few months after the correspondence of which you give a brief extract, married Jaquelin Ambler of Yorktown, Va., and was the mother of Mrs. Chief Justice Marshall, Mrs. Col. Edward Carrington, Mrs. Daniel Cole and Mr. George Fisher, all of whose residences now stand near by in the same square in Richmond. Prof. Laughlin's Bad Reasoning.

Prof. Laughlin, in his debate with farvey on the money question, said Prof. Laughlin, in his debate with Mr. Harvey on the money question, said that if free coinage of sliver at 16 so 1 was adopted, nearly $800,000,000 of gold in this country would instantly go out of circulation. Now, the question is, where would it go to? Will the gold go to Europe? If so, what do we get in return for it? Will they send our bonds home in payment for the gold? If so, we will save the payment of any more interest to them. But fet us inquire what would be the affect on the price of our commodities sold in a foreign market if $800,000,000 of gold should go thither. It is a fundamental doctrine, known for a thousand years, that when the volume of if $500,000,000 of gold should go thither. It is a fundamental dectrine, known for a thousand years, that when the volume of money increases in any country, all ladustry and commerce put on new life, and by the full employment of labor, its power of consumption is increased, making a new demand upon the market which causes prices to advance. So, when the gold which we do not need for domestic purposes has gone abroad, its movement will serve us two valuable purposes: First, To bring our interest-bearing bonds home; Second, To advance the price of our wheat, cotton and other commodities sold in foreign mar-

Wightman, a horse with a history from a St. Louis racing standpoint, won the fourth event at the Fair Grounds yesterday, and was taken away from his owner, J. E. Cushwas taken away from his owner, J. E. Cushing, by Billy Barrick, who ran him up $500 over his entered selling price, $400. Barrick was not anxious to own Wightman, but he took him away from Cushing because he thinks the latter was behind Dr. H. E. Rowall when the doctor claimed Figaro-away from Barrick at Memphis. Dr. Rowell's name, but he is in Cushing's stable and Barrick is making things unpleasant for Cushing in order to satisfy his thirst for revense.

Wightman, the horse that figured in yesterday's transaction, was formerly owned by Otto Stifel and his partner, Schorr, when they raced in the colors of the Gambrinus stable. They purchased the son of Bramble for $10,000 from Tom Kiley in 1892, and he was expected to prove one of the best 3-year-olds on the Western circuit that season. Instead, however, he was almost worthless, unfortunately developing a ringbone on one of his forelegs which prevented him from running on any but a soft track. Stifel & Schorr managed to win a race or two with him, but they never got back while togethey anything near what they paid for the horse. Afterwards the pair separated and Schorr retained Wightman. Cushing campaigned the horse for him last year and won several thousand dollars with him for Schorr. The latter tried to sell the horse all last year, offering him to Bob Rice at Little Rock for $1,400. After he had won several races with him Cushing concluded to take him and has had him ever since. The horse has class enough to win anywhere in the West, but he will not do on any track except one in the same condition as the track was at the Fair Grounds yesterday.

When Tom Kiley sold Wightman to Stiel & Schorr Judge Carter, who was here then, wanted him to go East and buy Morello, who was then a 2-year-old. Tom Doswell owned the son of Eolus at the time and had ayoungster which was sure to prove a great race horse to sell. Kiley let Frank Van Ness outbid him for the colt, and when he did so he made the greatest mistake of his life.

DAN CREEDON'S VICTORY.

The St. Louis Middleweight Finished Dan Creedon, the St. Louis middle-weight, made mincement of Joe Dunfee in their bout at the Atlantic Athletic Club, Coney bout at the Atlantic Athletic Club, Coney Island, last night. Dan knocked him out in two rounds, after they had fought exactly five minutes and seven seconds. Dunfee failed to hit Creedon once. He was finished with a hard swing which Creedon landed on his jaw. At the end of the first round the betting was 3 to 1 on Creedon. Dan was seconded by Jim Hall, Bat Masterson and Mick Dunn. Tommy Kelly, Charlie Billings, Alf Hanlon and Frank Bosworth were behind Dunfee.

The Maher-Marshall bout proved a bigger farce than the Creedon-Dunfee affair. Maher was a 1 to 3 favorite and he put his man out in forty-five seconds. Maher knocked down Marshall a half dozen times. The bout was to have lasted twenty-five rounds. Over 4,000 people saw the two battles. Champion Jim Corbett showed up unexpectedly and ocupied a box near the ring. He was cheered by the crowd.

Dick O'Brien and "Kid" McCoy fought a twenty-five-round draw in the arena of the Suffolk Club at Boston last night. McCoy was superior to O'Brien in scientific sparring, but his blows lacked force. O'Brien was on the aggressive throughout. SHAKERS AND DOCTORS TALK TO-

In his able work entitled "Longevity," published a few years ago, Dr. John Gardner of England, predicts that a vegetable agent will yet be found that shall so retard those changes that bring about old age as to prolong human life much found that shall so retard those changes that bring about old age as to prolong human life much beyond its present limit.

Acting, perhaps, upon the impulse produced by this thought, many eminent physicians have called from time to time upon the Shakers of Mt. Lebanon to inquire of them concerning the secrets of medicinal plants, in which these sincere, simple-mioded and, God-fearing people are known to be wise and skillful beyond all other mea.

The Shakers willingly told what they had learned, and in jurn received from their visitors much valuable information about disease, which they at once made practical use of. The most important point was that if a genuine and certain remedy could be found for indigestion and dyspepals, and the ailments growing out of it, a long step would be taken in the right direction. Old age, said these physicians, begins in a failure of the digestion, and so do most diseases at any and all periods of life. The result of these consultations was the discovery by the Shakers of the desired specific, made wholly from herbs, and now known as the Shaker Digestive Cordial. Its action is magical and worthy of its origin.

Where there is distress after eating, heartburn, sick headache, bad taste in the mouth, billousness, weakness and weariness, cold hands and feet, aversion to food, nervousness, or any other symptoms of dyspepsis, the Cordial will prove its curative virtuss. Behind it is the reputation of a people who have never defrauded or deceived their fellow men.

In order to test whether this remedy is adapted to your case, at practically no cost, you may pro-

WITHOUT A MOTHER'S LOVE, It Is Now Taking With a View to In-

Horrible Indignities Toward a Child Permitted by Blanche Webb.

Mrs. Mary Webb of 6059 Horton place preferred serious charges against her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Blanche Webb; John Holtman, an employe of the Pastime Club, and John Mahoney, Mrs. Blanche Webb's brother-in-law, before Special Agent Price of the Humane Society Tuesday.

Mrs. Blanche Webb lives at 19 North Vandeventer avenue and Holtman boards with her. Mahoney lives with his wife at 2005 Carr street. Mrs. Blanche Webb has three children, one of whom, Blanche, is directly connected with the charges.

Mrs. Mary Webb alleges indignities of a revolting character practiced upon the little girl by Holtman and Mahoney and countenanced by Mrs. Blanche Webb.

Ten days ago Mrs. Mary Webb says she became aware that Holtman was taking improper liberties with the child. She had a police summons issued against him for disturbing the girl space. The case is docketed in Judge Peabody's court for next Saturday. As soon as she secured the summons she took charge of little Blanche. Last Sunday she claims that Holtman enticed the girl away from the Horton place residence and again took her to the Vandeventer avenue home. This last occurrence actuated her to notify the Humane Society. She said Tuesday:

This morning's market was a repetition of those for some time past, the buying so fast and furi-ous that all opposition in the shape of selling, both for long account and for bearish traders, was easily overtidden, and as a vertice of 1%c scored. settled and irregular, with some very violent fluctuations, but closed firm with buyers %@%c above the price asked at close of yesterday's across the price asked at close of yesterday's alone.

An extraordinary array of crop damage literature and the morning rush to buy for country account gave the market its upward impulse at the opening, the advance being rapid and heavy while this buying continued. Some shorts, who sold yesterday, alarmed by the very bat reports heard on every hand and the very strong appears heard on every hand and the very strong appears of the market, were buying, also, adding to the present of that side. Besides the regular run of bug and drouth damage were reports of injury by frosts, and the frosts of last night created great uneathess in the fear that injury might have sculled thereform. As soon as the early country buying was filled, the market took the back track. As soon as lifed, the market took the back track. As soon as lifed, the market took the back track. OATS—Irregular. The May option was strong, shorts buying 16 at 30c on call, though more offered than wanted at that, while June offered at a discount. The new crop options were weaker, expecially Sept, which at one time sold 1½c below resteteds.

"Jerome is a fool," said Ford, fiercely. "He fell in love with a girl and can't get over it. The fair one in the case was Marion Crosby; an uncommonly attractive girl she was, too. Went in for society and that sort of thing, but had plenty of brains inside her shapely little head.

"Had a score of admirers, but first and foremost came Jerome. He had known her since her school-days and they had always been excellent friends, although he was ten or twelve years older than she. Jerome had everything worth having to offer her, besides being a lovable fellow, and we all took it for granted that she would marry him.

"I went there often in those days, being an all-around friend of the family. Mrs. Crosby told me in a moment of confidence one evening when I had been dining there that she thought there was little doubt of Marion and Jerome being married before long. They are not engaged, she said, and I suppose it is not in good taste for me to speak of it, but Mr. Jerome has been devoted to Marion for more than a year, and I am sure Marion; is fond of him—hew could voted to Marion for more than a year, and I am sure Marion is fond of him—how could any girl in her right senses be otherwise?

"Jerome never did anything by halves. If he loved the girl, of which there was small room for doubt, I knew he loved her with his entire mental and physical force. GRANCY LAW KNOCKED OUT.

The State Supreme Court Declares the Ordinance Invalid.

HARD BLOW TO THE POLICE.

The Decision Will Give Many Prison ers Now in the Work-House Their Liberty.

Special to The Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., May 2i.—In the Supreme Court, Division No. 2, three important opinions were rendered to-day, two of them by Judge Burgess. One completely knocks out the vagrancy ordinance, under which the police of St. Louis have for years been sending men to the Work-house and running crooks and suspected crooks out of the city. Scores of prisoners in the Work-of the city. Scores of prisoners in the Workhouse at present can secure their liberty under this ruling. The other important opinion by Judge Burgess holds that the law protecting the label of the Cigarmakers' International Union is valid, although the case prosecuted under it is reversed on account of the State's failure to probably prove the offense charged.

The third important opinion of the court is in a contested election case, it being held that an appeal does not operate as a supersedeas, two judges dissenting.

The important opinions handed down by the court are as follows: City of St. Louis vs. Thomas Roche, appellant. Roche was fined $500 for a violation of the eighth clause of ordinance No. 14,000, prohibiting association with thieves, etc. This court holds it to be a sacred right for a man to associate with whom he pleases, so long as no actual breach of law occurs, and that the ordinance is "absolutely invalid," as it abrogates the inalienable right of personal liberty. The judgment is reversed and prisoner discharged.

State vs. Chas. C. Bishop, appellant; Bish-

State vs. Chas. C. Bishop, appellant; Bishop was convicted in the St. Louis Criminal Court of selling cigars labelled with a counterfeit label of the Cigarmakers' International Union of America; for failure to prove that he knew the label to be counterfeit, the cause is reversed and remanded. The opinion, which was rendered by Judge Burgess, holds, however, that the Cigarmakers' Union trade-mark is subject to protection by law and that an act of the Legislature imposing a fine of $100 for imitating it is valid.

They rushed pellinto the reservation and staked off claims. Now they have discovered who was at the bottom of the hoaxes. Under a strict construction of the Sooner act of 1889, every man who went in on these false alarms is a sooner and barred from taking land. The men who were hoaxed find that an organization of the old Kikapoo boomers who have been camped on the line for years have all their names, the date of the runs and the location of the claim each one staked, to be used in proving them sooners, and the false alarms were a little scheme of the old timers to shut off much competition at the real opening. The couple went over to Illinois until they thought pursuit had been eluded and then returned to St. Louis and spent their time, she in dodging her parents and he in looking for work. His arrest disclosed the secret to Mr. Bozzell and Tuesday morning he found his daughter. Together they went to the Four Courts. Barr was in a sad state of mind and wanted to marry the girl and Mr. Bozzell concluded that as they both loved each other this was the best thing to do. WORK OF THE HOME MISSIONS

Dr. Norcross Reports to the Presbyterian Assembly.

BOARD MEMBERS CHOSEN.

The Assembly Has Adopted the Report of the Committee on Seminary Control.

PITTSBURG, Pa., May 21 .- At to-day's George Norcross of Carlisle, Pa., presented he subject of Home Missions. The report showed that in the quarter century since the reunion of the two branches of the church, the annual receipts had grown from $282,430 to $994,529, and the missionaries from 1,232 to 1,731. From the Woman's Boards $290,623 was received, from the churches $257.339, from bequests $234,414, and from individual donors $47,390. The year was ed at the end of March last with a deb of $34,850. Over $16,000 of this was charged o the interest account, and the aggregat to the interest account, and the aggregate was swelled by $50,000 on account of the work of missions and education among the Indians, more than half of it being due to the fact that the last General Assemblies directed that all subsidies from the Government be refused.

Among the interesting recommendations was one continuing Dr. Thomas S. Hastings President of the Faculty, and John Crosby Brown, Vice-President of the Board of Directors of Union Seminary, as members of the Home Mission Board. In objection to this, Mr. George E. Sterrey of New York moved that the nominations be referred back to the committee, so that the New York Presbytery might be heard on the subject. Temporarily the motion was laid aside.

Dr. Wm. C. Roberts, secretary of the board, reported that the amount received by the treasurer of the Home Mission Board had only once been exceeded and that was two years ago. The debt which he was compelled to report was great, even overwhelming, and the reason was that the needs of the country exceeded the generosity of the church the country exceeds the sensition house at the corner of Fifth avenue and Twentieth street. New York, made its first appearance in the report on Home Missions in a supplementary paper. It was stated that the total cost of land and building was estimated at $1,720,000 and the estimated revenue from rents about $100,000. The total cost mated at $1,720,000 and the estimated revenue from rents about $100,000. The total cost of maintenance and administration was estimated at about $63,000, leaving a net income of $27,400 in the least.

Dr. John Hall of New York, chairman of the Board of Home Missions, in reference to the pian to hold up the re-election of some of the members of the board, deprecated the results which were likely to follow. In the board he said nothing of a partisan character had ever been mentioned, and it would be disastrous if it were to occur even for the first time. It was a plea for peace and for the retention of the directors of Union Seminary on the Board of Home Missions. There was a storm of applause when Dr. Hall closed.

The recommendation of the re-election of Dr. Hastings, Dr. Charles L. Thompson, John Crosby Brown and others was then read by Dr. Norcross. Its adoption was moved, but Mr. Sterry of New York renewed his motion that the nominations be recommitted for a hearing from members of the Presbytery of New York. Mr. Sterry stated that churches had refused to contribute to the cause of home missions on account of the personnel of the committee. The motion was opposed by Dr. Norcross, who remarked, however, that like Mr. Lincoln, "He did not have much influence with this administration."

who remarked, however, that like Mr. Lincoln, "He did not have much influence with this administration."

Mr. Thomas G. Rich of Westchester Presbytery also opposed the proposed recommittal. On motion of Rev. Joseph R. Burrell of Brooklyn, N. Y. the motion to recommit was laid on the table by a large vote and the election of Dr. Hastings and John Crosby Brown as members of the Board of Home Missions was carried by a standing vote, with none in the negative.

A further resolution was adopted, which committed the church to contributions of a million and a quarter dollars next year. The first Sunday in June was designated as a day for the special purpose of raising the debt of the Home Mission Board.

By a vote of 432 to 98, the Assembly last night decided to continue the movement which is intended to give it absolute control over the theological seminaries. These resolutions were adopted:

1. That it is the sense of this Assembly that the Assembly of 1894 did not intend to prepare the way for any changes in the tenure of management of the property of the seminaries, or to do anything which can affect the autonomy of the seminaries, and that the said recommendations were intended to have the meaning and effect as recited in the committee's report. This Assembly, in reaffirming the resolution of the Assembly, in reaffirming the resolution of the Assembly, as an effective force, by charter provision, and of safeguarding by charter declaration the trusts held and to be held by boards of trustees, and with the further purpose of securing the veto power of the Assembly of 1894, does so with the action of the Assembly of 1894, and, in view of the properse made and the importance of the interests involved, declares that in its judgment the effort should be continued to secure the adoption, in substance, of the Assembly's plan by all the seminaries.

3. That a committee be appointed to have further charge of this matter and seminaries.

3. That a committee be appointed to have further charge of this matter and to make report to the next General Ashave further charge of this matter and to make report to the next General Assembly.

4 That the committee be instructed in the prosecution of its work and in its report to the next Assembly to give a full consideration to No. 8, of the concurrent acclarations of the reunion compact of 1870 in its relation to those seminaries now under synodical and Presbyterian control.

there by some ruffian, who attempted to entice her to a lonely spot. At 3:39 Monday afternoon Laura Hampe, 3 years old, and Augusta Clemens, 7 years of age, had a similar experience.

Laura lives with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Auguste Hampe, at 3414 Gravols avenue, and Augusta at 3351 Gravols. Both children attend the Gravols School, at Gravols and Wyoming avenues.

At 3:30 o'clock they were returning home together, when they were accosted, within a block of their home, by a rough-looking young fellow, who, by promises of candy, and threats, induced them to accompany him. He took them to the Grand avenue gate of Tower Grove Park. The children were thoroughly terrified before they reached the park, but they were afraid to run. Once inside the inclosure the man frightened them still more by his disgusting language. He was about to attempt further liberties when he caught sight of a gardener at work on a flower bed near at hand, and telling the children to await his return, hastened away in the direction of the south gate. The little girls lost no time in hastening from the place, and fairly flew to their homes.

As soon as Mrs. Fred Clemens heard her daughter's story she summoned a police officer, and Tower Grove Park was sooured for the culprit, but without success.

"My little girl described the man," said Mrs. Clemens to a Post-Dispatch reporter, "as rather young, with smooth face and light complexion, somewhat small in stature, and attired in a dark suit of clothes, the trousers frayed at the bottom, blue shirt and black stiff hat. I dislike publicity in this matter, and would not have reported it to the police, but this thing must stop out in this neighborhood."

Neither of the children were any the worse Tuesday for their experience, and were at school again.

It is purposed by the association to reduce this percentage to a minimum. In the words of one of its members, "The tone of a community is the measure of the enforcement of the law." The association contemplates elevating the tone of this community by extending its doctrines over the length and breadth of St. Louis. To accomplish this a series of mass meetings has been arranged and they are to be held in the western, southern, northern, central and business portions of the city, with addresses explaining the object of the crusade, the utter disregard in which the law has been held, and the benefits which will accrue from enforcing it. The mass meeting at the Third Baptist Church will be the first of these. The second will be held at Lafayette Park Presbyterian Church. They are not to be religious gatherings, being entirely in the hands of business men.

R. Waddill, State Insurance Commissioner;
Mr. T. S. McPheeters and Mr. John W.

the Executive Committee of the Sabbath Association, Rev. S. H. Werlein, president.
It will be opened by a statement from Secretary Chas. E. Stokes of what has already been acomplished. Maj. Waddill's address will be an exposition of the law,

Dr. B. P. Fullerton of Cumberland Presbyterian and Rev. F. G. Tyrrell of Central Christian Church are partly the authors of the new move. They believe that the meetings will work almost a revolution in St. Louis, awakening a public sentiment that will compel enforcement of the law.

ASSAULTED BY HOODLUMS.

Gang of Rufflans Pummel a Policeman in the Four Courts.

Officer Frank Bollinger was assaulted at 12:30 p. m. on the second floor of the Four Courts by a gang of hoodlums, the leader of which was Will Behan. Both Bollinger and Behan were taken into custody by Deputy Sheriffs, but from all accounts Bollinger appears to be entirely blameless in the affair.

linger appears to be entirely blameless in the affair.

The Grand-jury is investigating the killing of Jack Hanlon by Edward Boland, some time since, with a base ball bat. A lot of witnesses were on hand and were clustered about the east end of the Four Courts building on the third floor, where the Grand-jury rooms are located.

There were also a lot of Hanlon's friends about. They had come to see justice done, as they expressed it. Among them were Richie Hanlon, the dead man's younger brother, and Behan.

According to the story of Officer Bollinger, which is corroborated by others, Behan and his friends persisted in insulting some of the witnesses, among whom were R. F. Du Rosey, representative of the Utica Cement Co. 916 Market street, and a woman.

DuRosey complained to Sergeant Florich about Behan's conduct toward the woman, and the Sergeant ordered the fellow arrested. Boilinger took him by the arm and started downstairs, intending to lodge a charge of disturbing the peace against him. DuRosey went along, and so did Behan's friend.

When the second floor was reached, ac-

DuRosey went along, and so the Betalas friend.

When the second floor was reached, according to Bollinger, Behan tried to break away, and some one struck him from behind. Behan declares that Richle Hanlon told the policeman he had no right to arrest Behan, and that the officer said he would Behan, and that the officer said he would arrest young Hanlon also. At this Behan says he demurred, and that then the officer struck him.

At any rate, some one struck the first blow and a regular riot ensued. Boilinger was soon bleeding all over his face. His right eye was badly cut, his nose split and his tip bruised out of shape.

Deputy Sheriff Langford heard the rumpus and rushed out of the Sheriff's office. He saw Boilinger and a citizen struggling together. Thoughts of the old trouble between policemen and prisoners in the Court of Criminal Correction must have flashed in his mind, for he made a dash for the bluccoat.

in his mind, for he made a dash for the bluecoat.

"Stand back," yelled Boilinger,digging for his gun with one hand and holding Behan and Langford off with the other.

"I'm a Sheriff," shouted Langford, and then Deputy Sheriff Thompson came running out of the courtroom. Boilinger recognized him and ceased struggling. Both men were taken into Capt. Huebler's office to await the Chief Deputy's return.

CONVENTION IN SESSION.

Delegates Say It Will Be One of the Most Important Meetings Ever Held.

CLEVELAND, O., May 21.-The twelfth nnual convention of the Amalgamated As-ociation of Iron and Steel Workers of America was called to order by President Garland this morning, with about 100 delegates present. It is probable that at least 250 will be in attendance by to-morrow. The morning session was to have been an open one, with addresses of welcome

The morning session was to have been an open one, with addresses of welcome by Mayor McKisson and Mr. J. H. Hoyt. Owing however to various reasons the public meeting was postponed until the afternoon and the convention immediately went into executive session.

"The association," said Secretary Kilgalon, "was never in such a good position to hold a convention. While the convention will be weak in numbers, the strength of the association as represented was never so strong. Heretofore there have been dissensions among some classes of the trade represented. This dissension was attributable largely to several classes of the trade not being adequately represented. This year it is entirely changed. The association has galand in strength to every branch of iron and steel workers. During the hard times the lodges have expended a great deal more money than they took in, and many of them are consequently hard up.

"However, the delegates have come to the convention fully prepared to carry on an aggressive convention. They have all studied the situation thoroughly and could not have had better opportunity to become acquainted with all sides of the situation than during the recent depression and subsequent revival of business. The scale wage is being printed in Pittsburg and is expected to arrive to-morrow. The revival of trade will have a tendency to make this convention the most important ever held and the most successful."

tion the most important ever held and the most successful."
President Gariand reiterated in substance the statement of the secretary. All the delegates are free in expressing themselves that the business before the convention is of more than ordinary importance. The feeling that there will be some radical changes made in the wage scale appears to be apparent. The delegates are reticent and will not commit themselves in any manner.

BOWLING GREEN, Mo., May 21.—At a meeting of the Democratic County Commit-tee held here yesterday the following resolutions were adopted:

Whereas, Missouri at the convention held

Whereas, Missouri at the convention held at Kansas City in 1894 declared for free silver and was the first State to so declare itself upon this great question; and, Whereas, There has grown up a demand for a convention of representative Democrats of Missouri to take action upon the great question of free and unlimited coinage of silver regardless of the action of other nations, and, believing that such demand is wise and just, and that the free and unlimited coinage of silver at 16 to 1, as it existed prior to its demonetisation in 1873, is to the interest of the producing and laboring classes; therefore, be it

Resolved by the Democratic County Committee, that a convention be called in sach township to meet the 8th day of June, 1885, and select delegates to meet at the Courthouse in Bowling Green on the 10th day of June, 1885, to express its views upos the silver question, and also its wish as to the calling of a State convention.

SILVER QUESTION REVIEWED.

The Secretary Defends His Personal Record and Assails Free Coinage.

COVINGTON, Ky., May 21.-The adminis

surreptiously. Proceeding to more direct argument, he said:

Free and unlimited coinage of full legaltender silver dollars at the ratio of 15 to 1 means that our law shall be so changed that any owner of silver builion may send it to the mints and have it coined at the public expense, into dollars each containing 412½ grains of standard silver, the dollars when coined to be delivered to the owner of the builion, and all the people of the United States to be compelled by law to receive them as dollars in the payment of debts, although not intrinsically worth more than 50 cents each. The 52.8 grains of standard gold contained in a gold dollar is worth 100 cents, or the equivalent of 100 cents, all over the world, in silver-standard countries as well as in gold-standard countries, and it is worth just as much before it is coined as afterwards; but the 413½ grains of standard silver contained in a silver dollar is not worth anywhere in the world more than about 50 cents. Or, to put the statement in a different form, 16 pounds of silver cannot be exchanged for 1 pound of gold anywhere in the world, but it requires about 32 pounds of silver to procure 1 pound of gold everywhere.

But someone may say that this is not a promised to pay for it in the standard money recognised by law at the date of his contract, believes that it would be just and honest to discharge his obligation in a new standard worth only half is much as the meney he borrowed or the property he purchased, he would appreciate and indores this argument, and it would be useless to discuss the question with him.

CURRENCY CONTRACTION.

But if, as I have already endeavered to show, the immediate effect of the adoption of a free coinage policy at the ratio of 16 to I would be to contract the currency to the extent of about 182,00,000, by the withdrawal of that amount of gold from cross and other forms of credit, prices would not even nominally advance. On the contract, for the time being at least, this contraction would greatly reduce prices because it would alarm the country, destroy credit, and undoubtedly produce the most serious financial disturbance this country has ever winnessed. Every depositor in the savings and other banks, fearing that he would ultimately be paid in deprecisted silver, would immediately demand the return of his money, and this would compet the banks to call at once for the payment of all the notes and other securities they have discounted for their customers, and the contraction of the currency would cause an increased demand for currency at the very time when it could not be obtained, and thus the difficulty of the situation would be increased by both causes. The banks would be compelled to eithat suspend payments themselves or drive their customers, who are selves or drive their outsomers, who are selves of sold and the owners of silver mines. The holders of silver mines. The people who owe no debts and have money on hand would be the ones to suffer most, while the people who owe no debts and have money on hand would be require most, in the payor of the dollar, and at the s would have for a long time fewer dollars to pay with.

Common prudence would dictate that, when any considerable change is to be made in our monetary system, some provision should be made in advance of the actual change for a gradual transition from the old to the new order of things; a transition period should be provided for so as to avoid, as far as possible, a sudden disturbance of business and contraction of the currency; but the advocates of free coinage have no such purpose. They propose to make a sudden and revolutionary change in the standard upon which all existing contracts of the people are based, and by which all

BIG COUNTERFEITERS.

Authorities Think They Have Made Important Arrests.

DENVER, Colo., May 21.—With Denver as a base of operations and the entire Western country for a market, James Charles Corbett and his gang of counterfeiters have been making and uttering base coins on a scale seldom attempted before in this country, acording to the belief now held by United States Secret Service Agent Walker and the city detectives. Corbett and his brother-in-law, George W. Allen, have been bound over to the Grand-jury. Their wives, who are sisters, and a third sister, Mrs. Millie Hyland, are under arrest awaiting a hearing.

Mrs. Hyland lives in Butte, Mont., and was on a visit to her sisters in Denver when their residence, where a complete counterfeiter's outlit was discovered, was raided. The secret service officers believe that Mrs. Hyland made frequent trips to Denver and carried much counterfeit money to Butte.

Special to The Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 21.—Louisa L. Taft, is a woman detective at Jackson's dry goods store. Yesterday she suspected a couple in the store of shoplifting and followed them out. She says she saw the woman pass goods to the man. She snatched two pleces of silk and demanded that they go back to the store with her. They started, but the man ran away before they had gone haif a block. Miss Taft, who is a little woman, seized her large-sized female prisoner by the arm and they went a little further. Then, without any warning, the prisoner struck her captor in the face, knocking her down. Still Miss Taft hung on, and the two woman rolled over and over on the side-walk. Finally the woman broke away and ran down Fifteenth street. Miss Taft had no recourse but to follow her escaping prisoner. She followed. At Seventh avenue the big woman jumped on a street car. By hard running Miss Taft also caught the car. The woman got off at Fourteenth street and so did Miss Taft. Then began a race between the two women. Down Fourteenth street to Elighth avenue and down Elighth avenue to Horatio street. There the female detective got the first sight of a policeman caught the big woman, who was exhausted by her long flight. He took both women to the Jefferson Street. Police Station. Mrs. John Henry Doesn't Mind a Trifle

NEW YORK, May 21 .- Mrs. John Henr of 265 Adams street, who is big and stout, had a singular experience yesterday after-noon. After doing her usual Monday work noon. After doing her usual Monday work she sat down to rest near an open window. There she fell asleep and finally fell out of the window, four stories, into the street. She struck the news stand of Herman Stell on the corner, rolled off to the sidewalk, rose to her feet, calmly brushed off her clothing, walked up the stoop and back to her rooms without a word. A policeman who heard of it called to see if she was hurt found her sitting on the side of a bed calmly engaged in combing her hair. She seemed utterly unconcerned as to the trifling matter of her four-story fall and was astonished at the presence of the officer.

"Ain't you hurt in any way?"

"Oh, I jarred my teeth a Jittle, but I don't think any of them are loosened," replied Mrs. Henry. "I ain't hurt any, but I am afraid I may have a headache tonight."
